Assistant Professor, Tenure Track - Clinical Psychology: The Department of Psychology at Roosevelt University invites applications for a full time, tenure track position at the Assistant Professor level in the area of Clinical Psychology, with an emphasis in Neuropsychology, to begin August 2016. The preferred candidate will bring evidence of scholarship, teaching, and service. Preferred research areas include, but are not limited to: pediatric neuropsychology, developmental disabilities, and/or cognitive assessment.

Qualifications include: a PhD or PsyD in clinical psychology from an APA-accredited program, an APA-accredited internship, and licensed or license-eligible in the state of Illinois. The successful applicant will be expected to teach undergraduate courses in the biological bases of behavior as well as graduate psychology courses, mentor student research, and maintain a productive research program. The Department of Psychology at Roosevelt University includes a large undergraduate program, as well as Clinical Master's programs and an APA accredited, PsyD program.

Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. All applicants should submit, in electronic form: a letter of interest, curriculum vita, a research statement, teaching statement, a list of references and representative publications via the application portal at: https://jobs.roosevelt.edu/. Questions may be sent to the Chair of the Search Committee, Dr. Steven Meyers at smeyers@roosevelt.edu. Roosevelt University has two campuses: one is located in the Chicago loop, and one in suburban Schaumburg. The university's mission is focused on social justice and quality education for all. Roosevelt University welcomes women, LGBT, disabled, veteran, international, and minority-classified individuals as applicants for all positions and is an Equal Opportunity Employer.