Assistant or Associate Professor of Clinical Psychology (Tenure-Track Position)

California Lutheran University

The Graduate School of Psychology (GSoP) invites applications for a tenure-track position in the doctoral PsyD program beginning in August 2015. The GSoP has 10 core faculty members in a School that is comprised of a PsyD program in Clinical Psychology, Master of Science programs in Clinical Psychology and Counseling Psychology (MFT emphasis), and two large community counseling centers that provide low-fee Spanish and English clinical services. The Centers also provide practicum and clinical research opportunities for PsyD and MFT students who are supervised by a Clinic Director and 21 licensed clinical supervisors.

The PsyD program, which has adopted a practitioner-scholar model, accepts 15 students per cohort and offers emphases in areas such as forensics, Latino/a psychology, dialectical behavior therapy, and intimate partner violence. The program took its first class in 2010 and has been approved for an APA-CoA accreditation site visit during Spring/Summer 2015. The School distinguishes itself by having small classes, a caring faculty and staff, state of the art facilities and technology, and a rigorous curriculum designed to train students in accordance with APA’s Competency Benchmarks. The program is committed to training students to integrate practice and research, develop competency in research and scholarship, and appreciate human diversity by serving the underserved.

The area of specialty is open; however, the program has particular interest in applicants with skills in research methods and statistics and the ability to teach graduate-level courses complementing the balance of faculty skill sets. Other areas of preferred focus include developing a program of applied or basic research with the potential for grant funding. Additional activities include chairing doctoral dissertations and MA theses; and providing professional service to the program, university, and profession. Preference will be given to applicants from an APA accredited doctoral program in clinical or counseling psychology who are licensed or license-eligible in California. ABDs may be considered with the expectation of degree completion prior to the start date.

Candidates should submit: a cover letter; faculty employment application which includes names and contact information for three references (http://www.callutheran.edu/academic_affairs/faculty_resources/ApplicationInformation.php); CV; reprints or preprints; statements of teaching, research, and clinical interests; and teaching evaluations if available. Applications will be reviewed upon receipt and for full consideration should be received by February 16, 2015.

Cal Lutheran is an accredited, private, comprehensive university located midway between Santa Barbara and Los Angeles. Additional information may be found at www.callutheran.edu. Cal Lutheran is an Equal Opportunity Employer. The University encourages candidates who will contribute to the cultural diversity of Cal Lutheran to apply. All offers will be contingent upon the completion of a successful background check.
